During the evening there was a fine to the high procession, participated in by a the Hayes and Wheeler Guards of Bridge-port, Etnaville and the Seventh Ward of this city. The Etnaville boys brought along an excellent drum corps. The uniforms of the torch-bearers were neat a and tasty, and deserving of special notice. The Bridgeport Guards wore white capes, trimmed with red, upon the backs of which were the names, "Hayes and Wheeler." The capes of the Etnaville boys were also white, trimmed with blue, upon a heavy blue collar was the word "Etnaville," and on the body of the cape, "Hayes and Wheeler Guards." The Seventh Ward club was without uniforms, having failed to receive them in time. As the boys marched gallantly along they chested much enting is a haping the intense crowd of pepple that through the streets, and were cheered all along the route. The pole about which the crowd as mbled to hear the speaking is as he ome a stick as we have seen. It is abou some a stick as we have seen. It is about one hundred and fifty feet in length, as straight as an arrow, hewn into eight squares and painted a sort of adrab color. Upon the top of the pole was a bright blue light, while underneath and immediately over the speaker's stand was apsepended a beautiful flag. The pole was received by Messrs. John Bloom, Joseph Ingraham and several other simployes of the La Belle glass works, at their own expense.

The meeting was organized by John Crooks, Esq., taking the chalt, after which the Island glee club sang the 'Star Spangled Banner.' Capt. B. B. Dovener, of this city, was then infroduced, and apoke nearly an hour and a half on the issues pending in the political canvass. The speech of Capt. Dovener was a line one, and embodied many points not before brought out in the present campaign. In starting out, the Captain stated that he did not expect to come up to the expectations of his audience, as he had for several days been prostrate with sickness, yet he had promised to talk to the Republicans of his neighboring State, and would do so to the Leaf' of his ability. He then reviewed the course of the Dengratic party, showing their habitualshostillies to the government; and how they thrust four years of bloody war upon the nation. His review of the causes that led to the war was masterly, and also the motives which, actuated those who were mainly instrumental in creating it. He admitted that the Republican party had made mistakes, but what party had not? The cry of hard times, while he thought it just, attill he did not put the blame on the Republican party, but rather blamed the Democracy; it was but a reaction after the flush times created by the inflated condition of affairs, consequent upon the war, and all this could be traced directly into the Democratic camp. Mr. Tilden's record was scathingly reviewed, and the great "reformer" shown up in his true colors. The speaker gays an interesting history of the l'ise of Boss Tweed from a chair maker to an Alderman, from an Alderman to the chairmanship of the County Executive Committee of Kings county, New York, and from the Executive Committee to a seat in the State Senate. It was Samuel J. Tilden who first brought Tweed to the surface, and who used him as a tool in his political manipultians. When Mr. Tilden was requested to attend the meeting of the citizens of New York at which the tamous "Committee of Seventy" was appointed he declined to do so; and it was not until the New York Times had exposed the Tammany.ring that he turned State's evidence and appeared in the role of a reformer. Tweed, after his incarceration, escaped from the caustody of the Sheriff; yet Tilden did not remove the Sheriff, as according to the laws of New York he was authorized to do, but on the contrary the Sheriff retained his position and was a delegate to the St. Louis Convention, and howled for reform with John Kelly and the rest of the sweather introduced by hilm: at the famous peace convention in Chicago in 1864, when Governor Hayes was at the front fighting for the preservation of the Union, In closing he appealed to bis hearers to cast their her bein but to the bis hearers to cast their but of that

The pleasant weather of yesterday gave a new impetus to street life, the thoroughfares being unusually lively in the afternoon.
